ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A user interface integration apparatus, upon reception of an integrated page creation request from a WWW browser, executes a user interface integration program, fetches pages constituting an integrated page from corresponding WWW application servers according to integrated page configuration information, creates an integrated page integrating the fetched pages, assign a copy function between common data, transmits the integrated page created on the WWW browser, and displays integrated page on the WWW browser.